GOOD WORK UNDER HANDICAP

Harriet Beecher Stowe's Literary Productions Put Out in Face of Some-what Adverse Conditions.

Although the best work is often produced in the face of difficulties, the obstacles may sometimes be so great as to prevent work altogether. Harriet Beecher Stowe, for example, was so crowded by her housework that she wrote little till she was forty. She never gave up trying, however, and her sister Catherine, who sometimes took dictation in the Stowe kitchen, has left some amusing accounts of Harriet's efforts at composition. One of those accounts is quoted in "Heroines of Modern Progress."

Harriet brushed the flour off her apron and sat down for a moment in a muse. Then she dictated as follows:

"I know my duty to my children. I see the hour must come. You must take them, Henry; they are my last earthly comfort!"

"Ma'am, what shall I do with these eggshells?" interrupted Mina, the servant.

"Put them in the pail by you," answered Harriet.

"They are my last earthly comforts!" said L. "What next?"

"You must take them away. It may be—perhaps it must be—that I shall soon follow, but the breaking heart of a mother still pleads, 'A little longer, a little longer!'"

"How much longer must the gingerbread stay in?" asked Mina.

"Five minutes," said Harriet.

"A little longer, a little longer!" I repeated, in a dolorous tone, and we burst into a laugh.—Youth's Companion.

USUAL WAY

"Why didn't the chief of police investigate the matter before?"

"How should you expect him to know anything until he sees it in the papers?"

REAL VILLAIN.

"Are you the villain in this troupe?" asked the baggageman, who was handling theatrical trunks.

"No," replied the youth with black, curly hair. "I used to be, but the real villain is the treasurer of the company, and by this time he must be about 500 miles on his way to somewhere else."

IN THE NUTTERY.

Visitor—What's wrong with the man in that cell?

Attendant—He's a doughnut.

"You mean that is his hallucination?"

"No; he really is. He went crazy on the subject of money."—Judge.

DOESN'T SEEM MUCH.

Belle—It is said that it would take 27,600 spiders to produce one pound of a web.

Beulah—The idea! And yet people try to tell us that spiders are industrious!

EVIDENCE ENOUGH.

"How do you know you have been farthest north?"

"I got where I couldn't buy a postcard. Sure I've been."

CORRECTION.

"Fine night," said Smithers, glancing at the heavens.

"No," replied the Boston girl, "you mean infinite."—Harper's Bazar.

DOESN'T WORK THERE.

"Say, ma, who said, 'Neither a borrower nor a lender be?'"

"Some person who'd never lived in the suburbs, Tommie."—Life.

HOW PUBLIC LIKED HIM.

Friend—The public will miss you now you have left the stage.

Actor—That's why I left. I dislike being hit.—London Standard.

BRONCHITIS SUFFERER

Takes Druggist's Advice With Splendid Result.

If any one should know the worth of a medicine, it is the retail druggist who sells it over his counter every day in the week, and is in a position to know what remedy gives the best satisfaction.

Mrs. Frank H. Uline of West Salt Lake, N. Y., says: "For a number of years I was a great sufferer from bronchitis. Last July I had an attack which was more severe than any and my friends thought I could not recover from it. Then I was advised by my druggist to try Vinol, which I did with wonderful results. My cough has left me; I have gained in weight and appetite and I am as strong as ever I was. I advise all who have bronchitis, chronic coughs, or who are run-down to try Vinol."

It is the combined action of the medical curative elements of the cod's liver, without oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron that makes Vinol so efficient in such cases.

Remember, we guarantee Vinol to do just what we say—we pay back your money if it does not. Crenshaw & Young, Druggists, Lexington, Mo.
